

Undoubtedly the finest front rank, in point of combination, was shown by Charleroi, but they lacked precision when trying to find the net.

Neither Braddock nor Roscoe were defeated on their own grounds, but each lost to the other when playing away from home.

Dunlevy dropped two points at home, and a like number away, and in each case the champions were the gainers.

The season of 1908 also saw the birth of a second league, namely, the Central Association Foot Ball League, with headquarters at McDonald.

BRADDOCK SOCCER FOOT BALL TEAM.

R. P. McGreive, one of the staunchest supporters of the game in the district, was elected at the head of this organization and was ably supported by the secretary and treasurer, T. N. Johnson. Great credit is due the above-named officers for the successful manner in which the business of the league was conducted, and the season of 1909 should bring increased strength and encouragement for their efforts in behalf of this great game.

The teams playing under the auspices of this body numbered five, but the opening of the schedule was unavoidably delayed, and the result was that only eight games had been played when the season closed on January 1, 1909.
