When Manager Thomas Dempsey of the Pullman Car Works club selected the insignia "P.C.W." for his red jerseys he probably did not anticipate its double meaning. Nevertheless, the team wearing these initials took on the added title of "Peel Cup Winners" in the championship match played on May 29. It was a hard-fought game, witnessed by a large crowd, but played over a rather tufty pitch. On the day's play the car works players well deserved their 2-0 victory and possession of the Peel cup and medals, especially when it is recalled that the Pullman veterans played one more game in the competition than the Harvey boys or any other team, because they were one of only two clubs to be drawn in the preliminary round of the eliminations. The two Johns, Pollit and Black, each scored one goal for the car works with the inside and able assistance of Captain Cartwright.

Taking the game as a whole, the car works men as a team were a shade superior to their suburban rivals. However, they had the ball in the air too much during the early part of the match in approaching movements, and especially against Harvey's clever, cool full-backs. The losers' forward line did not seem to harmonize with the sparkling play of the elongated Bentley at outside right, but their display reached a good standard. The Pullman
