

MAJOR G. RANDOLPH MANNING,
330th Field Artillery, U.S.A.

One of the first to offer his services to the American Government when it went into the war. He was immediately welcomed and for a year labored on this side, not only qualifying himself for his grave duties abroad, but aiding immensely in bringing others to the requisite standard. He is now in Europe, one of the band of heroes who are bringing new honors to our country and our flag. Major Manning was the first president of the United States Football Association, in the organization of which he was one of the most important factors. He always has been an able and industrious worker in the advancement of soccer, not only in his civilian life but since he entered the military service.
